The Zoning Officer will then direct the applicant to the appropriate Board for their land use application. The Zoning Application can be found on the Township website at (www.hardingnj.org). Any questions regarding a Zoning Application can be directed to the Zoning Department at (973) 267-8000 Ext. 715.

To submit a development application for any property in the Township of Harding to either the Planning Board or Board of Adjustment, it is necessary for a complete application to be filed with the appropriate Board Secretary. 1. Two (2) separate checks payable to the Township of Harding; one for application fees and one for professional technical review fees as per Section 171 of the Code along with the signed Escrow Agreement and W-9.

Dear Applicant:

The following forms will help us process your request when your application to construction and zoning officials involves a historic structure or if your property is located in a Historic District. The Administrative Assistant to the Historic Preservation Commission (HPC) can help you to determine if your property meets the applicable criteria and make available the information necessary to complete the form in the application package.

Your property is located in one of Harding's historic districts or was built before 1915. Therefore consideration of your application includes referral to the Historic Preservation Commission. The Historic Preservation Commission is asked to assist and advise applicants on ways of conserving, protecting, enhancing, and perpetuating the historic character of your property. Specifically, the Commission is charged with promoting historic preservation within the township. The Commission also seeks to preserve the township's rural streetscape.

In the case of demolition requests for any building built before 1945 and located within a Historic District recognized in the Harding Township Master Plan, a demolition hearing is required. The Historic Preservation Commission will review and comment on this application within 45 days. They will issue a Certificate of Appropriateness if demolition is approved. Without a Certificate of Appropriateness, demolition will be delayed up to nine months as described in the township ordinance.

In the case of other applications for building permits, the Historic Preservation Commission is given the opportunity to and comment on your application. Upon receipt of these comments or after 20 business days, whichever comes first, the building officials can issue the requested permit (assuming the rest of the application is complete).

The Commission welcomes an early review before a formal application is made. In addition, once you have made a formal application to the building department, the Commission will review your application at its next monthly meeting. You are encouraged to complete the attached HPC application package one week prior to the meeting and attend this meeting. Commission meetings are generally held in the Municipal Building at 7:30pm on the first Thursday of each month. Instructions to help you complete the package and prepare for this meeting are also attached.

Please contact the Historic Preservation Commission Secretary, at 973-267-8000 Ext. 723 or email: landuse@hardingnj.org concerning your availability to attend this meeting and discuss your plans for your historic property.

Sincerely,

Historic Preservation Commission

Failure to respond with 20 days shall constitute a report in favor of the applicant.

FOR DEMOLITION REVIEW:

Within 45 days of referral of the application for a demolition permit to the HPC, the Commission shall reach a decision on an application and submit its report to the Construction Code Official. This timeframe can be extended by mutual agreement of the applicant and the Commission. Failure to respond with 45 days shall constitute a report in favor of the applicant, without conditions.

NEW CONSTRUCTION DESIGN GUIDELINES

Our Historic Districts are just that in part because of the number and contiguity of contributing structures. In this context, a new structure can easily result in a loss of visual continuity and cohesiveness. New Buildings must be designed to fit into the streetscape that frames their site. It is not suggested that all homes within a historic district have the same or similar design. By responding to the design characteristics of the existing environment, new construction can further enhance the architectural integrity and diversity of our historic districts. The following design factors should be considered:

MASSING: The three-dimensional form of a building and its roof shapes should be similar to those of other buildings in the area.

SITING: The new building should have the same relative placement on the lot as the older structures and the setback distance from the street should be equal.

HEIGHT: The building should be within a few feet in height of the neighboring structures. The height of the neighboring cornice lines, window heads and sills, and the first floor elevation above the ground should all be carried through.

PROPORTION: The building's proportions of height to width of the façade and its components should be consistent with adjacent buildings. Furthermore, the overall proportion of the building's mass must be appropriately scaled for the district. Maximizing square footage and building size within a historic context is not appropriate.

RHYTHM: Buildings along a streetscape create a rhythm in their placement and the location of their entries. Furthermore, each façade has a rhythm created by solid walls punctuated with windows and doors. New construction should respect the established rhythms.

MATERIALS: The appeal of older building is often in their use of quality materials and detailing. New construction should continue the use of established neighborhood materials, such as painted wood siding.

SCALE: The standard size and shape of most building elements is generally known; an existing doorway is known to be about 3 feet wide by about 7 feet tall; a typical brick is about 2½" tall by 8" long. A new building with 10-foot tall door or 8" by 16" bricks would be out of scale with other buildings. It is also important to maintain other comparable elements such as floor-to-floor heights and cornice lines.

The following also should be considered:

PLACEMENT OF GARAGE: Typically, the garages on our historic properties do not have garage entrances towards the front on the house and facing the street.

USE OF ACCESSORY STRUCTURES: Typically, our historic properties have accessory structures, such as barn, sheds, and detached garages.

ROOF PITCH: Typically, roof pitch is consistent with the style of the home (i.e. early colonial or colonial revival, cape, East Jersey cottage, bungalow, American foursquare, etc.) as well as compatible with the architectural context in each respective district.

GRADING: Typically, our historic structures were built at existing grade without "in fill".

DEPARTMENT OF INTERIOR STANDARDS FOR REHABILITATION OF HISTORIC STRUCTURES

(US Dept. of Interior Regulations, 36 CFR 67)

A structure should be used as it was historically or be given a new use that requires minimal change to its distinctive materials, features, spaces, and spatial relationships.

The historic character of the structure should be retained and preserved. The removal of distinctive materials or alteration of features, spaces, and spatial relationships that characterize a property should be avoided.

Each structure should be recognizable as a physical record of its time, place, and use. Changes that create a false sense of historical development, such as adding conjectural features or elements from other historic properties should be avoided.

Changes to a structure that has acquired historic significance in its own right should be retained and preserved.

Distinctive materials, features, finishes, and construction techniques or examples of craftsmanship that characterize a structure should be preserved.

Deteriorated historic features should be repaired rather than replaced. Where the severity of deterioration requires replacement of distinctive features, the new feature should match the old in design, color, texture, and where possible, materials. Replacement of missing features should be substantiated by documentary and physical evidence.

Chemical or physical treatments, if appropriate, should be undertaken using the gentlest means possible. Treatments that cause damage to historic materials should not be used.

Archeological resources should be protected and preserved in place. If such resources must be disturbed, mitigation measures should be undertaken.

New additions, exterior alterations, or related new construction should not destroy historic materials, features, and spatial relationships that characterize the property. The new work should be differentiated from the old and be compatible with the historic materials, features, size, scale, and proportion, and massing to protect the integrity of the property and its environment.

New additions and adjacent or related new construction should be undertaken in such a manner that, if removed in the future, the essential form and integrity of the historic structure and its environment would be unimpaired.
